WAITED UNTIL RIGHT TIME.
After waiting on the Mexican border for three years and never once seeing the active service his heart longed for, a former private of the 13th U. S. Cavalry was today accepted for enlistment in the United States Marine Corps.

"I have been waiting down there on the border expecting trouble to break out," he told Sergeant Frank E. English in charge of the local Marine Corps recruiting station, "and I began to think that, Villa would never start anything, but now day or two after I'm discharged, my old outfit is in the very thick of it."

"Villa wouldn't start anything so long as you were there," English comforted the ex-soldier. "But when he heard that you had been 'paid off,' he knew that the psychological moment had arrived and that it was safe to commence hostilities."

SUDAN GRASS FOR OHIO

Seedmen are exploiting Sudan grass unduly and asking higher prices than the value of the seed. The value of the crop warrant in northern states, according to C. G. Williams, agronomist at the Ohio Experiment Station. This annual grass was introduced into the United States from Africa in 1909, and has found its chief adaptation in southern and western states where suitable hay plants like timothy, clover and alfalfa cannot thrive.

Ohio, however, it occupies a position similar to that of sorghum and millet. While Sudan grass does well on moist soils, it requires a well-prepared seed bed and moderately dry weather because it is easily killed by weeds.

For this reason the crop is often grown in rows 30 to 36 inches apart and cultivated like corn. From three to six pounds will seed an acre in this way, but for hay Sudan grass is best drilled solid at the rate of 25 to 30 pounds of seed to the acre.

Figures given in the March Monthly Bulletin of the Station show that this crop has yielded more than four tons of hay to the acre, but it is coarse and low in feeding value.

On this account Mr. Williams has suggested that farmers in Ohio will do well to grow the ordinary hay crop.

DEPENDS SOLELY ON CONDUCT.
The stand taken by the State Administration that whether or not a saloon man held his license depended upon his obeying the law and not any contribution he might make to any political party, is meeting with most favorable comment from all parts of the state.

During the last few days the Liquor License commission has received a number of letters from county boards, complimenting the Administration on its stand. Prominent among these letters was one from the Hamilton County Board. These boards maintain that it comes closer to taking the saloon business out of politics than any other steps that have been taken under the existing laws.

Governor Willis makes himself plain in the matter by saying that no saloon keeper in Ohio is to contribute to his or any other campaign to hold his license.

His license depends solely upon his conduct in business.

At a debate held by members of the United States Marine Corps on duty at Gonaves, Haiti, 97 voted for and 11 voted against a resolution that, "aside from the personal liberty issue involved, the abolishment of the canteen was a splendid thing, and that members of the United States Marine Corps, on duty at Gonaves, are solidly against any movement looking to its restoration."

The Marines at Gonaves say they are not more temperate or abstemious than other U. S. Marines serving over the world.

Articles Challenge Explanations.
The cheap, flimsy, flimsy article can never stand alongside of the honest, reliable article without challenging an explanation.

The business man who cannot meet this demand upon him is not up to date, and his education regarding the line of goods he carries should be touched up.

If the home town consumers are alive and awake to their own interest they can begin to educate the local merchants by demanding from them the information concerning the difference in the quality of their goods and the goods of the catalogue retailer. If they are unable to explain they will also be unable to render efficient service to their customers.

It is the merchants of this kind who wake up to the situation.

MORNINGS ARE HAPPIEST HOURS

Get the Spirit of the Early Day Into Your Being.

Are you bright and happy in the mornings? Catarrh is the great American ailment. Its effects are far more general than usually are understood. Catarrh of the stomach and kidneys is a most frequent cause of chronic dyspepsia and Bright's disease. Catarrh conditions in the nose and throat in many cases, leads to deafness.

Even the lungs are affected because catarrh inflammation first opens way to the lung substances through the bronchial tubes.

If you are not bright, cheerful and refreshed in the mornings, catarrh probably is the cause.

The mental and physical condition of catarrh sufferers is pitiable but it is surprising how many people suffer from catarrh when they fully believe something else is the cause.

Catarrh can be easily detected. Some of its commonest symptoms are: dull, throbbing headaches, watery eyes, constant sniffing, dropping of mucus into the throat at night and awakening choked and half-nasal, sleeplessness, dizziness, full-headed, stopped up nasal passages, dryness of the membranes, pains in the stomach, side and kidney region, faulty digestion, bad breath and coated tongue.

Tanlac was created particularly to combat catarrh. Thousands are testifying daily that Tanlac has fulfilled its mission.

Tanlac may now be had in Wauseon at the Fink & Haumesser Drug Store where its merits are explained fully.

Tanlac may be obtained in Fayette, at the King Drug Store; Bryan, Culbertson Drug Co.; Napoleon, J. S. Schaff.

DRUGGISTS-STORE KEEPERS
An exclusive Tanlac agent is wanted in every town, village and cross road in this county. For particulars and advertising plans address Cooper Medicine Company, Dayton, Ohio.

CELEBRATE SHAKESPEARE'S ANNIVERSARY ON MAY 19
The celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the death of William Shakespeare will be combined with the annual May Day festival of the Ohio State University, to be held May 19. The event will be in two parts, one Shakespearean and the other modern in character.

A series of old English dances, opening the program, will be followed by a procession representing Queen Elizabeth and her court. Following this will be a masque, given presumably for the pleasure of the royal court.

Desire to arouse greater interest in the May fete has led to the consideration by the Women's Council, particularly of allowing senior men to vote for May Queen. Heretofore this privilege has been confined to senior girls.

WOULDN'T WORK.
When a false mustache, with fierce bristles pointed loose on the upper lip of John Homer, an applicant for enlistment at the Houston, Texas, United States Marine Corps recruiting station, it was discovered that Homer was a runaway, 17 years of age, and had hit upon the mistake of disguise to add age and dignity to his appearance.

When "cruel" Sergeant Robinson of the Marines shattered the boy's romance with the announcement that he'd have to wait until he was 21, or else get parents' consent, and now young Homer is inclined to the belief that there is little efficacy in the borrowed mustache when applied to life's stern realities.

"I'll come back some day with a real mustache of my own and then you'll be glad to accept me as one of Uncle Sam's brave Marines," were Homer's parting words.

TAXATION IN OHIO

Administration Receive Recognition from The Rocky Mountain News at Denver, Leading Colorado Paper, Regarding Taxation Matters.

Not only is the splendid administration of Governor Willis recognized in his own state, but in other states as well. The Rocky Mountain News at Denver, the leading paper in Colorado, has the following to say regarding his handling of taxation matters in Ohio.

A Lesson From Willis Ohio. When Governor Willis of Ohio, a Progressive Republican, took up his duties a year ago, he found the Ohio tax commission the chief cog in the Democratic machine created by his predecessor in office. And in its day the Cox political juggernaut was a wonderful steamroller. The state commission had opportunity to spread its tentacles to the extreme corners of the state thru the appointment of deputy assessors in every county.

The new Governor did not adopt half measures in dealing with the situation. He knew very well that if he failed to act promptly and decisively his administration would be a failure. He removed the purely political commission and all of the deputy assessors, or as they are officially termed, county tax commissions. Out of a hundred and two removals three were reappointed.

It was claimed by the opposition that the step taken was political and unwarranted and so forth, but the people stood by the new executive. In explanation of the step taken, Governor Willis has written to his friends why he took such drastic action:

"The fact is the taxing machinery of the state has been used for political purposes and it was being so used evidently in such a manner as to impose upon the people a tax in improper sense, but it is a matter of common knowledge in this state that the taxation machinery of the state has been used for political purposes.

In this situation it seemed advisable to have in office men who were in sympathy with the plans and purposes of the present administration, particularly as they were deputy assessors in the state was removed. Their successors have been appointed, a new State tax commission has been appointed, and the work is proceeding smoothly and without hitch."

In Colorado the state tax commission was born of a political scheme. The appointment was dictated as part of that scheme. The commission from the outset has been partisan. It is doubtful whether today it has any sympathy with the state administration. There can be no question but what its acts have been detrimental to the administration of the state.

There is increase in taxation, but it is important, they have been a draw back to the state's prosperity. All the commission can point to, anywhere, is increase in taxation. State, County, City and School taxes.

If the influences which were responsible for the creation of the commission and its personnel can hold it as it is, we suppose the people will grin and bear it. Still we cannot help but admire the Willis way.

JOHN PAUL JONES
As a preliminary to a proper preparedness program, the United States Marine Corps has enlisted the services of John Paul Jones, and now has him serving his country in the role of Marine private, attached to the Mare Island, California navy yard.

Private John Paul Jones, U. S. M. C., who says his only relationship with the great naval commander of the same name is a similarity of purposes, temperament, and patriotism, has "not yet begun to fight," for, unlike the real John Paul, he was a peaceable citizen, of Brawley, California, without military training or experience.

When Jones finishes his recruit drill he will, like his namesake, see with other Marine Corps recruits, or else be assigned to some expeditionary force operating in foreign waters, or ashore.
